Here's a pointer. There are 250 inches of reading matter in this issue of the Courant than in this office. Courant.

Another pointer. There are 312 inches of reading matter in this issue of the REGISTER that was set up in this office. And 60 inches of it is non-pariel, mostly solid.

There is a rumor that the Sunflower Route is soon to pass into the hands of a new company, ostensibly, and that its name is to be changed to the Fort Scott, Wichita and Western. This is probably the last move of Jay Gould to freeze out the municipalities and other small stock holders—which is us.

The County Commissioners had a special meeting Tuesday at which they let the contract for building the wings of the Geneva bridge and grading the approaches, to B. McWilliams, of Neosho Falls. The matter of the appeal from School District 18 was also brought before them, but they concluded they had no business to do with it.

As foreshadowed in our report last week the Samuel preliminary resulted in the defendant being bound over to the District Court, with the privilege of bail, the sum being fixed at $6,000. The bond was executed on Monday, S. C. Varner, B. D. Lee, George McClellan, J. H. Jones and J. M. Samuel appearing as sureties, and the prisoner was released. He returned at once to Moran and will conduct his business as usual pending his trial. In this connection, in reply to surprise that has been expressed in certain quarters that the case would not be commented on the facts in this case as published last week, we will simply say: THE REGISTER does not believe it to be the province of a newspaper to use its columns to create a prejudice either for or against an individual accused of crime; and the present system is so difficult enough at best to secure a competent jury; and the REGISTER does not hold itself justified in increasing the difficulty and thereby increasing the cost to the county, by urging its own opinion and thereby prejudicing others. It is true that the present system is one of the worst in the world, but the courts alone to determine, and it is one that they should be left to determine as free as possible from the embarrassment of a manufactured public opinion. Thus, THE REGISTER gave a full opportunity to the defense, and the result which resulted in the death of W. L. Allard. It has no wish to usurp the functions of a court in pronouncing judgment either of acquittal or condemnation upon his slayer.

By reference to the minutes of the Horticultural Society, published elsewhere, it will be seen that the organization has done the REGISTER the honor to call attention to the suggestions made in its last issue concerning steps to be taken to have a fair here this fall. Committees have been appointed, correspondence will be opened at once with representative horticulturists of the State, and the friendship of the county and all the arrangements necessary to insure success will be made without delay. It affords us unqualified satisfaction to make this announcement for we feel assured that the contemplated Fair will be a complete success and will be great advantage to the people of Iowa, both to the whole county. Of course it will be considerable of an undertaking for the Horticultural Society, but they may be assured that their efforts will be heartily seconded by the business men and citizens of Iowa generally, and that any reasonable demands that they may make will be cheerfully granted. We have talked with a number of people about the project and we have found no one who was not willing to do his very best for Allen County's first Annual Horticultural, Agricultural and Stock Exhibit.

A LaHarpe friend of ours writes us that he wages successful war on the chinch bugs after the following manner: "Plant corn in rows, leaving four feet between each row, and sow the seed in furrows opposite the bugs. Throw the dirt away from the bugs. Take a spade or a post auger and make holes in the furrow sixteen inches deep at any distance most convenient, the more the better. Keep the furrows straight and perpendicular, so the bugs will get in the furrow and fall in the holes. When a sufficient quantity fall in take about two tablespoons of kerosene and sprinkle over them and drop a small wisp of saturated hay or straw over them and set fire to it. After a few days repeat the process until the bugs are all dead. It is better to dig new ones. Draw a line with coarse ball twine along the opposite side of the furrow saturated in coal oil and the bugs will not attempt to cross the line and it thereby confines the bugs to the furrow and in this way the main cause of the damage may be effectually destroyed with but little labor or expense."

Arriving at the grand stand the band played a rousing national air, and then followed a patriotic song and the orator of the day, Judge Stillwell, was introduced by the president of the day, and such a speech! The best we ever listened to; full of sound sense and happy thoughts. He regretted that our limited space will not allow of his remarks in full. He closed his speech with a round of good, practical advice, something after this fashion: "Don't mortgage your farms and homes. If you have a mortgage already hanging over your head, don't mortgage again, pay it off, and never go back and let the mortgage eats while you sleep. Never go to law with your neighbors, for lawyers are usually the ones who eat all there is in a law suit. May I stress you all."—Yates Center Democrat.

Our friend Frederick Goring, brought some of the finest plums yesterday that we have ever seen. They were large, of fine flavor and without speck or flaw. He says that this year is the first time he ever succeeded in raising them as heretofore the fruit was always stung by insects, and dropped before maturity. This year he covered with molasses and stuck fast in it immense numbers. As a result Mr. Goring had more than a bushel of perfect plums on every tree.

The REGISTER has no interest whatever in the proposed new road from Ft. Clinton to Chanute, but it occurs to us that if the people of this city can give well-to-do effort to give it the aid asked, twenty thousand dollars for 12 miles of road is surely a good investment, for the road it is built it will pay more in taxes every year than the interest in the bonds amounts to. We should like to hear what the local gentlemen here propose we get located in Allen county, the better we are off.

Voorhes G. Smith, a young man of West Plains, Mo., is about to start on another day with a model of an improved pitman connection for a mowing machine for which he has recently received a patent. The improvement involves the principle of the lever and he claims that a machine with this attachment will require at least a half lighter than one built upon the old plan. We trust his expectations will be realized and that he may find thousands, if not millions in it.

The Notes, in speaking of the recent visit of the Yates Center base ball club Humboldt, says: "Our boys were well treated while in Humboldt, both by the ball players and others whom they met. Quite a number went over to see the game, and were glad to see us. We've heard of that Humboldt chap, 'Others,' before. He treated some of our fellows so well one Sunday that when they came home their friends asked and took them away in their little cars."—Chanute Blade.

Dr. Low Dow, Chinaman, (it was said) cruel for some wicked boy to add "n" to his last name on the big "yellow sign," held forth with a "Grand Union" flag waving at the Yates Center Hall on Monday and Tuesday nights. He didn't draw very large audiences, his net proceeds for the two nights being $6.00 but this, as he gleefully told us was "bett' tan dollar!"

In reply to many inquiries as to why it is so hot, we give it as the best of our knowledge and belief that the reason is found in the fact that the earth receives more heat during the day than it is able to get rid of in the night. This discovery is not entirely right with us, but we have not seen aught recently.
A Plaindealer representative celebrated the Fourth of July by getting such a enjoyable time. The attractions were the Chanute band, G. A. R. entertainment, camp of S. V. Co. B. and a splendid display of fireworks by local flambeau club. At a low estimate there were 8,000 people present. Garnett Plaindealer.

The advice of the Register either carries with it a good deal of weight, or else it succeeds remarkably well in inducing out what advice the people want and then giving it to them. We have elsewhere alluded to the endorsement given by the Horticultural association, and now Rev. H. A. Johnson informs that, in the line of suggestion made last week, he has secured Freeman's Grove from the first to the fifteenth of September for the purpose of holding a Methodist Camp Meeting. Mr. Johnson will go to Ottawa soon to make arrangements for the camp meeting, and all the other necessary arrangements. The encampment will extend over a week or ten days, and under Mr. Johnson's enthusiastic and capable management we have no hesitancy in predicting its complete success.

Down at Geuda Springs the "Frisco" is putting up a $100,000 hotel, a $50,000 bath house and spending a lot of money in other ways to make the place a popular resort. Why couldn't the Southern Kansas be persuaded to buy Freeman's Grove and either buy a mine or a Mineral well and do the same thing here? Is the matter of the hotel worth the matter of the bath house? Is it worth the matter of the hotel and bath house, and with half the money that is spent at Geuda Springs could be converted into a resort that would bring thousands of strangers here every summer? Would it not be worth while for the people of this State to send a committee to confer with the Southern Kansas authorities concerning the matter?

The Board of Trade has a letter from N. F. Acres stating that the Wyandotte Brick Company have thoroughly tested the samples of clay which Mr. Acres recently shipped to them from this place, and pronounce it the best clay in the State. This certainly is very encouraging and the Board of Trade will at once open correspondence with a view of having the deposit utilized. With the finest clay in the state to be had for the asking it would certainly seem that Iowa ought to be able to manufacture and export enough to supply the home demand and at least.

Reports come from a great many of the neighboring towns of excessive mortality among children, the various summer complaints seeming in many places to be epidemic. Iowa has been very free from child sickness thus far, but the most trying season of the year is now upon us and only constant vigilance and independence, a Camp meeting from the source that has benefited our neighbors. Pure air, pure water and proper food are the chief preventives.

THE REGISTER will begin next week the publication of a continued story by county Treasurer Hayward. It will be entitled "The Delinquent Tax List" and will run four weeks. There are many "loaves" in the story but there is lots of money. It is made up more entirely of descriptions and names and will doubtless be highly interesting to a great many people. We subscribe now, so as to get all the chapters.

The biggest celebration ever held in the valley; an Eastern Star Picnic at will sweep in everything from the "big game" to the "big story" but meeting that will be heard of all over the state; a G. A. R. Reunion that will bring us 5,000 veterans; a Horticultural Fair and Stock Show that will be the talk of the county until another held next year;—who says it doesn't pay a town to have a park?

F. F. Strickland shipped two carloads of gravel from Mondak to Leavenworth for the purpose of the understanding that if gravel is satisfactory he is to make contract to ship 2,000 carloads to the same parties. The result is awaited with much interest as the digging and grading of so large an amount of gravel will entail a large expense and the gravel is taken from Mr. Mondak's land.

All those indebted to me will please pay and settle the account either by cash note by the 25th of this month. I am afflicted with an account of illness in my family I am obliged to change climate for a time and wish to settle before I go. I can't fail to come in as I had rather settle all accounts myself than to have done by some one else. A. E. Wright.

We make no apology for occupying considerable space in the paper with a notice of the death of Mr. Barkholder's Broom reaper Harvester. If the use of it will reduce the cost of raising broom corn a third or a half, as the inventor claims it will, it will be of inestimable value to the farming community. We call attention specially to the notice and the use of trial, given in our notice.

BROOM CORN HARVESTER.

The above cut represents Mr. Burkholder's new Broom Corn Harvester, recently introduced in these columns. As will be seen; it is a simple frame, built so as to rest on top of an ordinary wagon bed. The wagon is driven so that the row of corn passes inside of the iron rod which projects from the lower left hand corner. A man sitting on the end of the board "1" breaks it over a notch knife fastened to the board as seen under the rod, and which cuts it off. He then passes it along the table "3" to the cutters who sit on board "2". They cut it, laying the straight heads on the table "1" and dropping the crooked heads down into the wagon box.

This, in brief is the modus operandi, and broomcorn raisers will at once see the many advantages the harvester offers over the old method. Some of these advantages may, however, be briefly enumerated.

1. It can be operated with from two to five hands, two working it with the same proportionate advantage as five.
2. All hands ride.
3. Gait of team may be regulated according to thickness of corn, thus enabling men to handle as much brush in a day of thin corn as of thick.
4. The stalks are cut from 5 to 8 feet high, the brush and cut off stalks being separated easily and rapidly.
5. The crooked and straight brush are separated without trouble or loss of time.
6. Easy on men and team.
7. Each man's labor shows for itself, leaving no chance to shirk.
8. Brush never has to lie out over night or be bleached by morning dews and sun. It is loaded as it is cut and is housed directly from the harvester. This feature alone is worth more than the cost of the implement.
9. Leaves the stalks standing straight and in good condition for plowing.

In short, the inventor, after a thorough trial, is certain that the Harvester will reduce the labor of saving a crop of broom corn from one third to one half. In order, however, that broom corn raisers may have a chance to see for themselves, he asks us to say that the Harvester will be tried at the farm of H. Busely, 1½ miles north of LaHarpe, next Wednesday July 20, beginning at one o'clock. Mr. Busely has some early corn which will be ready to cut at that time and the Harvester will be given a thorough test. We would advise all broom corn growers to be present and witness the trial. If the Harvester does what is claimed for it, no farmer can do without it.

As the implement can be made at slight expense by any farmer or mechanic, Mr. Burkholder will not attempt to manufacture them but will sell farm rights at low rates. He will also sell territory to any one desiring to act as agent.
